Angus Hand

Angus hand is a set of authentic handwriting fonts reminiscent of a time when sending hand-written letters was part of our daily lives. Based on samples of love letters written from Victoria, Canada in 1955—Angus Hand subtly conveys the love and care that was written into the content of those original letters.

This font is dedicated to the love between my grandparents who got married on Valentines day in 1956.

← CASUAL

Angus hand is based on the handwriting of my grandfather R.B.Angus. I traced the original letters he wrote to my nana in 1955 and those drawings served as the casual style, which stays true to the imperfections that bring warmth to these letterforms. I then created a calligraphy style for a slightly more formal version of my grandfather's writing.

The casual style has features that make it feel more authentically like real handwriting. The Contextual Alternate feature swaps between two versions of each letterform automatically as you typeset and Standard Ligatures add extra combinations. Optionally, Contextual Swashes can add entry strokes to some lowercase characters, creating a fancier look.

Hi Margie,

Here we are again after another day of honest labor. We were working in Esquimalt today and we got a lot accomplished. After supper I drove up to Deep Cove on the Saanich Peninsula to check a wharf and float. I took the crew except the Captain with me. Blanchard's son is a deck hand on the boat and is quite a nice chap; he is 17 years old. I like that part of the Island very much and someday you and I can drive through it.

I guess you have been busy these days doing all the things you always have ahead of you. What did you do today? We will have lots of things to talk over when we are together again.

There is nothing exciting to report tonight except that I miss you so much sweetheart. If I think about it too much I'll want to come home right away. So take good care of yourself and the best of everything.

All my love,
Bruce
